and 1949 put down as missing, making a total of 11,872. From May 19 to June 2 there were 702 officers killed, 1497 wounded and 165 reported missing, or 2260 in all.

These figures bring out the fact that the proportion of killed to wounded runs one to two, which is probably due as much to the fact that the line of the lower grades are the first to leave the trenches during attacks as to the use of high explosives.

BIG GUNS AGAIN WIN FOR AUSTRIA

Teutons Force Way Through Russian Lines in Region of Grodek, Lemberg.

Austrian Field Headquarters, June 22.—The Austrians have hammered their way through the Russian lines in the Grodek region and are besieging Lemberg, capital of Galicia. An immense amount of heavy and medium caliber artillery was massed against the Russian positions at the heights of Marierow, northwest of Lemberg. This position was admirably suited by nature for defense and was fortified with triple lines of entrenchments.

At a given signal the artillery opened fire against the Russian positions. The effect of the bombardment was crushing. A shower of high explosive shells such as broke the Russian defenses in the battles on the San at the beginning of June, fell into the Russian trenches.

Austro-German Sweep Through

The Russian troops were shaken by the artillery attack and when the Austro-German infantry was ordered to charge they were able to sweep through and over all three lines of defense, not pausing until they reached the other side of the ridges overlooking the valley through which runs the railroad and the highway from Lemberg and Zolkiew and Hava Ruska.

Hava Ruska now is captured, the railroad and roadway are now in Austro-German hands and a wedge of the allied troops seems to cut straight through the Russian right wing, parts of which are retreating northward while the rest are being driven in on the main Russian force around Lemberg.

Fight for Lemberg

The battle now is raging for the possession of the Galician metropolis and its fall is expected within a day or two at the latest. Gen. von Mackensen's army, barely 12 miles away, is knocking at the gates from the north, while Gen. von Boehm-Ermoli is north of the Grodek lakes. A further advance from the south would have been delayed by the rolling, wooded country between the Dniester and Lemberg and this blow would not have menaced the Russian lines of retreat so seriously.

Field marshal Conrad von Hotzendorf, chief of staff, decided for that reason to attack from the north, placing the utmost confidence in the strong Russian fortifications. His calculation did not go astray. The allied victory caused a retirement of the Russians along the entire line through Grodek to the Dniester marshes and thence along the Dniester.

Russians Counter Attack

While decisive blows were being dealt on this battle front, the army in Bukovina, the army under Gen. Pflanzer and Ballin were forced to withstand a series of extreme violent attacks from fresh Russian forces. These assaults were designed to relieve pressure on Lemberg by breaking through the Austro-Hungarian right flank.

It is believed here that the Russians will not attempt to hold Lemberg, but merely to fight rear guard actions in an attempt to get away safely the remnants of their armies. They have available for retreat only the double track railroad running south from Lemberg through Krasnie to the Russian frontier, and a single track line from Lemberg southward through Berezany, toward Bessarabia.

LAW INSTRUCTOR LOST POSITION

Coloradoan Declares Sympathy With the Coal Miners Was Cause of Removal.

Boulder, Colo., June 22.—Prof. James H. Brewster of the law faculty of the University of Colorado, who called to be reappointed to his position by the board of regents, today issued a statement declaring that he had been removed on account of his sympathy with the Colorado coal miners in their recent strike. Brewster was one of the attorneys for the strikers before the congressional committee which investigated the strike in the spring of 1914.

Dr. Livingston Farrand, president of the university was out of town today and could not be reached. Officially, however, the university authorities denied that the removal of Brewster was the result of his labor activity.

Autographed Requests

Brewster's statement declared that his attitude regarding the strike had so undermined him with the regents that his reappointment became impossible. On May 7, the statement added, he received a telegram from Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the United States commission on industrial relations asking him to testify before the committee at Washington. He showed the message to president Farrand. The statement went on:

"Conversation with Farrand. President Farrand told me that my going to Washington was a matter for me to decide, but if I went my connection with the university must end. I stated that I saw what I ought to do, and as it would be difficult to obtain a substitute for my work, I would not go. He said: 'That is much more comfortable, adding that he also must say that if I did not go, I must not regard my remaining as entitling me to reappointment.'

The statement charges that in December, E. M. Ammons, governor of Colorado, demanded that Brewster be immediately dismissed, but that president Farrand at that time refused to consent to such action.

DAN FITCHETT KILLS HIMSELF

Former Policeman Fires Bullet Into His Brain; Had Been Despondent.

Daniel T. Fitchett, 48 years of age, shot himself through the head with a revolver at his home, 410 North Pinedas street, about 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, according to a report made to the city police.

Fitchett had been in ill health for some time, according to the story told the police, and had been rather despondent. It is believed that he brooded over his troubles and decided to end them all by taking his own life.

His wife and several children were at home when they heard the shot in the bedroom of the head of the family. Rushing in there, they discovered Fitchett's body. He had placed a revolver to his left temple and pulled the trigger. According to the police, death must have been instantaneous.

Was Former Policeman

Fitchett was well known in the city, where he had resided for many years. Later he had not been working and has been moody. He was a member of the city police force for several years, retiring from the force about five years ago. He was well known throughout the city, his nicknames being "Big Dan."

The bullet, after passing through Fitchett's head, penetrated the wall and went into the next room, breaking a electric light globe. The glass fell on Mrs. Fitchett, who was in the room at the time.

Fitchett called for a doctor about half an hour before he shot himself. Apparently he had become despondent while waiting the arrival of the medical man, and shot himself.

WILLIAM MORGAN SLASHES WRIST WITH RAZOR BLADE

He was given medical attention at the emergency hospital and later sent to the county hospital. He begged the police surgeon for morphine but was refused.

Tuesday morning George Brooks was discovered with his wrist opened and bleeding profusely. He had used a piece of broken glass, the police stated.

RAILROADS AND SHIPPERS AGAIN ARGUE ABOUT RATES

Washington, D. C., June 22.—Representatives of the principal western railroads began argument today before the interstate commerce commission in support of their applications for increased freight rates on grain, livestock, coal and many other commodities.

The commission first heard argument on the financial condition of the roads by C. C. Wright.

Faced with increased taxes, higher costs of labor and added expenses in many other directions, he contended an increase on some of the important commodities is justified and will be understood and approved by the public.

Clifford Thorne, speaking for 16 state railway commissions and several shippers and farmers' organizations, spoke against the increases. Mr. Thorne said the railroads based their requests on the theory that the book cost of the railroad properties had been taken at their value on which they were entitled to seven percent.
